At the St. Josef-Hospital Bochum – University Hospitals of the Ruhr-Universität Bochum – the position of a University Professor (W2 equivalent) as Senior Physician in the internal Rheumatology department (m/f/o) is to be filled for initially 5 years. The professorship can become permanent following a positive evaluation. The disciplinary criteria for the evaluation of the professorship can be requested at berufungen-medizin@rub.de.

The professorship includes responsibility for running the Rheumatology department within Medical Clinic I (Director: Prof. Dr. Wolfgang E. Schmidt).

Medical Clinic I comprises 180 beds in the departments/specialisations General Internal Medicine, Gastroenterology/Hepatology, Haematology/Oncology/Palliative Medicine, Diabetology/Metabolism, Rheumatology, Infectious Disease and Intensive Care Medicine. The Rheumatology department presently has 25 beds at its disposal; expansion is possible. There is intensive cooperation with the other specialisations and clinics of the Katholische Klinikum Bochum.

Qualification as a doctor specialising in internal medicine and rheumatology, as well as a positively evaluated junior professorship, an Habilitation or equivalent scientific achievements, are required for applying. In addition, the following core competencies are required:
• Proven clinical experience in rheumatological medical care in the position of senior physician or director
• Highly developed leadership skills and clinical management abilities
• Willingness to participate in interdisciplinary clinical and scientific work, as well as networking ability
• University level pedagogical skills, including a high level of documented commitment to student teaching

Outstanding scientific achievements and successful acquisition of external funding are expected, as are close clinical-scientific cooperation with other divisions of the Medical Faculty, especially in the designated main areas of research, participation in existing and future joint research projects, and involvement in academic self-government. The attachment to the university takes place in accordance with § 9 (2) HG-NRW (the Higher Education Law of North Rhine-Westphalia).

The Katholische Klinikum Bochum, as the sponsor of the St. Josef-Hospital, and the Ruhr-Universität Bochum would especially like to promote the careers of women and are therefore pleased to have female applicants. Applications from suitable disabled and analogous applicants are also very welcome.

Information on the advertised W2 professorship can be obtained from Prof. Dr. Wolfgang E. Schmidt, Director of Medical Clinic I (Tel.: 0234-509 2311, email: wolfgang.e.schmidt@rub.de).

Address your written application, including the usual documents (professional history in the discipline, publications list, external funding obtained, teaching experience), as well as the application form available at http://www.medizin.ruhr-uni-bochum.de/deканат/sachgebiete_service/berufung.html.de, up to six weeks after the publication of this job announcement to

Dean of the Medical Faculty of the Ruhr-Universität Bochum, 44780 Bochum

as well as to the Management Board of the Katholisches Klinikum Bochum gGmbH, Gudrunstraße 56, 44791 Bochum and, in addition, by email (in a PDF file) to berufungen-medizin@rub.de.